

SEN. RON JOHNSON

"I'm Not Hearing Anything"

JESSICA HOCKETT MAR 14  57  91

Did Senator Ron Johnson pretend he suddenly couldn't hear when he was being told about my New York City investigation?

I appreciate this follow-up. Thank you.

I will email you, but I'm going to respond here to what you've said, for the record and the benefit of my readers:

1) Shannon was speaking for more than 30 seconds before the Senator said he couldn't hear anyone talking. Even 5 seconds would be a lot of dead time. Are you suggesting that staffers, including yourself, were sitting in a room with him for that long and did not prompt him to say he couldn't hear if anyone was speaking?

2) Even 3 seconds is enough time for a staffer to enter my Twitter handle, see exactly who I am, what my focus is, and to advise him not to respond, etc. It doesn't matter if that's what occurred; we can all easily imagine it occurring. Moreover, I have been critical of Senator Johnson, and of Pierre Kory and Nicole Sirotek (two of the Senator's favored "frontline" professionals who were sent to/went to New York City after the peak of the biggest mass casualty event those hospitals ever experienced). Given that staff were in the room, it is not unreasonable to interpret the Senator's long silence as intentional, even if it wasn't.

3) The Senator could hear Scarlett Johnson, who very briefly summarized what Shannon was saying, as "the COVID fraud in New York." While it's true, the conversation was quickly moved along, the Senator did not react to what Ms. Johnson said - and easily could have, i.e., "Ok. Shannon, I'm sorry I couldn't hear you. Please reach out to my staff."

4) I'm glad you are sure the Senator is interested in learning more and I will

He does ma'am, and I promise you we were in the room and couldn't hear. I know 30 seconds is dead space, but I promise we were trying to figure out why we couldn't hear. Nowadays someone's word doesn't mean a lot, but I'm hoping you'll take mine. I look forward to your email.

A U.S. Senator's word means less than nothing these days - and Senator Johnson is no exception. I don't know you but operate on a zero-trust policy at all times. I'm sure you understand why.

Whether you/we could hear isn't the issue. It's whether the Senator did and why he expressed zero interest in the idea of "COVID fraud in New York" as stated by Ms. Johnson.

Thank you.

We remain hopeful the senator is compelled to act upon this extensive data that Jessica has gathered. We see a lot of talk but action has been scarce.

If he was serious, he would want to know.

But we know he's just another war hawk and is playing a role.

That's why he does these stupid meetings instead of having the debate in Congress.

That is very odd. I'm at the point of distrusting almost everyone except a handful of people. One minute they make sense and the next minute they don't, like McCullough now supporting the mRNA platform for immunizations. Insane. Nothing Johnson does would surprise me either.

SMH. Kory I don't know about but minus hospital protocols he might have done a decent job in NY as many doctors would have but they're too well-groomed by big harma and $$$$. Have you talked to Nicole Sirotek? I have no other way to link this except the Facebook version. She testified at Johnson's early hearing but she seem to do her own thing. Haven't keep track of her lately . May 2020:

Kory was so unprofessional and dismissive in the last intvw in which I heard him that it's difficult to believe nearly anything he says. And the way he jumped around from state to state, hosp to hosp during CV19 is quite suspicious.

I saw the videos of Dr Kory answering questions about his work in New York early in the pandemic.

His answers to the questions were perfectly sane and reasonable, although he did express some frustration about the nature and tone of a few of them (some of the questions sounded argumentative, more like those of a prosecutor questioning a hostile witness than a search for answers).

He repeatedly said something important.... He was actually there treating patients. He reported what he saw and what he heard from others, patients, doctors and nurses.

He said that he saw no indication that the sudden deaths in NYC were caused by anything other than Covid.

And he also said something to the effect of 'I don't know what the data shows, but I was there treating real people who were sick with Covid'.

It's entirely possible for there to be something wrong with the NYC death numbers without a doctor in the field noticing it.

Good point. He would have to have had a active medical license in any state he was actually treating patients (even in a consultative capacity). So does he have a NY State Medical License or did he at the time in question.? Worth asking/checking.

Gaye -- I wonder whether this is the post by Dr McCullough you were remembering. He cites a published paper for the proposition that while the mRNA Covid injections were a disaster, the mRNA platform may have utility in other circumstances.

Agree completely. Dr. McCullough has been heroic in his efforts to combat the globalists and educate the public about Covid and has done so at great personal cost. But like all of us, he's not perfect. If I recall correctly, he was still getting flu shots in 2021. He has more recently changed his view about flu shots and has become skeptical about vaccines more generally. Like you, I hope his view of the mRNA platform also has changed with time. His more recent favorable commentary about statins is particularly troubling. I hope at some point he'll review and address the almost universally negative reaction from his readers about his statin posts. He clearly knows the mRNA Covid shots are extraordinarily harmful and he knows Big Pharma has corrupted the medical journals, but it appears he doesn't fully appreciate the scope of the corruption or that it predates Covid by decades. I suspect that if he dives into statins like he has Covid, he'll no longer be touting them.

In recent days, he did publish a couple of things supportive of statins. Is it possible that's what you saw and not something about mRNA. (I was surprised and disappointed about the statin stuff -- I'm convinced by overwhelming medical research they try to censor that there are serious, debilitating toxic effects associated with statins and no real benefits.)

You may appreciate this video on the TWC by Amazing Polly:

<https://www.bitchute.com/video/0ZIM1sYaCGWm/>

The connections and investors in this company are astounding, wild and beyond belief. VERY STRANGE BEDFELLOWS indeed. The founders' bios are particularly disturbing. There are some previous ones also regarding the founder of TWC attacking Polly for her investigations.

I do not necessarily agree with all she has to say but her ability to not only connect the dots (but find the dots and follow the money is quite illuminating.

I have begun to sour on all this freedom movement shit.

It has become a huge business. They cannibalize one another if they are not promoting one another. The biggest names we assumed were honest investigators may not be all they are cracked up to be.

As for the senators (esp. Rand Paul and Johnson) -- they have narrowly and studiously avoided any deep, serious analysis of emerging data on all fronts. I think the Fauci vs Paul circus was just a major decoy-distraction. I sure fell for it for a long time. I no longer believe Wuhan was the epicenter of the bioweapon.

He could hear her as he then referenced her 'Shannon' by name.

Also if he happened to get her name from the screen, he would have been able to see the purple volume monitor under her name moving, to know that someone was speaking.

His responses were perfectly timed when Shannon had completed her comment, if he couldn't hear her then how would he know when to interrupt especially after the first comment.
